$ 312

First edition. "When writing these Chronicles of Uganda I was well aware that there were already in existence a good many books dealing with Uganda, and that a considerable literature has gathered about the region of Africa wherein Uganda lies; yet I felt that there was still a distinct need for some book which should represent, as a continuous story, the chief events which led up to Uganda's becoming an English Protectorate; and this need I have endeavoured to supply in the following pages.

In some measure, at least, I have tried to write from the standpoint of the native actors in the scenes which I describe."(author's preface).

Hubert Droogmans [1858-1938], chairman of the Comité Spécial du Katanga between 1900-29.

"A district of the Lualaba covering the territory of future Katanga, was established in 1888 as part of the Congo Free State. As the Free State didn't however have the financial and human resources to colonize the new territory its administration and exploitation was entrusted in 1891 to the Compagnie du Katanga.

In 1900 the Company's rule was replaced by that of a new agency, the Comité Spécial du Katanga - CSK, including representatives of the Free State and of the Compagnie du Katanga and enjoying - like the Company - full administrative and economic powers"(geocities.com).

First edition. Magnus Gustaf Retzius (1842-1919), professor of histology in 1877 at Karolinska Institutet, Stockholm and professor of anatomy in 1889, presented the results of his research in more than 300 papers devoted to descriptive macroscopic and microscopic anatomy, i.a. DAS GEHÖRORGAN DER WIRBELTHIERE, 1-2 (Stockholm 1881-4), perhaps the most magnificent of all comparative anatomical studies of the ear. His literary efforts included prize-winning collections of poems, translations of the poems of Robert Burns, and travel descriptions such as the above work, an account of the author's journey to Egypt in 1890, first published as a series of letters in Aftonbladet, a daily newspaper in Stockholm.
